

Nikko AM Global Shares Unhedged Strategy

Monthly Update 31 December 2024

Assets are held in the Nikko AM NZ Wholesale Global Shares Fund. The Nikko AM Global Shares Fund (retail) and the GoalsGetter KiwiSaver Scheme Nikko AM Global Shares Fund invest in units in the wholesale fund, which the commentary refers to.

Market Overview

- Global Equity markets (NZD, unhedged) finished off 2024 with a very strong month and quarter to close out what was a second straight spectacular year.
- The Kiwi fell sharply over the month and the quarter, versus the USD in particular, so returns for unhedged NZ investors in global shares were very strong.
- The MSCI ACWI Index (unhedged in NZD) was up 3.09% for December and up 12.44% for the quarter.
- AI dominated performance again over the course of the year, and IT and Communication Services sectors outperformed the fourth quarter, driven largely by the “Magnificent 7”, though also helped by stellar results from Broadcom Inc.

Fund Highlights

- The fund posted a positive return for the quarter, well ahead of its benchmark.
- Key contributors for the quarter were Netflix, Inc., Broadcom Inc. and Interactive Brokers Group Inc.
- Key detractors for the quarter were Elevance Health, Inc., Tesla, Inc., Apple Inc. and Uber Technologies, Inc.

Market Commentary

Global equity markets for unhedged NZ investors finished off 2024 with a very strong month and quarter to close out what was a second straight spectacular year. The MSCI ACWI Index was up 3.09% for December and up 12.44% for the quarter in NZD terms. The Kiwi fell sharply over the month and the quarter, versus the USD in particular, so returns for unhedged investors in global shares were strong. The US election took centre stage over the fourth quarter with the decisive win for the Republican party being well received by the US equity market in particular, where November returns were strong. Uncertainty on the extent new global trade or tariff policies might be rolled out by the incoming Trump administration was reflected in some weakness in non-US markets.

Some of the more cyclical sectors such as Financials, pushed higher in the weeks after the US election in anticipation of Trump led deregulation while interest rates rose. AI was a key driver of performance over the course of the year, and IT and Communication Services sectors outperformed over the fourth quarter, driven largely by the “Magnificent 7”, though also helped by stellar results from Broadcom Inc. The Consumer Discretionary sector also performed well, driven by both Tesla and Amazon.com, Inc.

Fund Commentary

Although no one theme dominates the portfolio, what is common across the holdings is the ability of the companies to raise pricing when required and continue to take market share. Across the globe, growth is scarce, and this scarcity has driven the ratings of those that can deliver. The premium for top-line growth is high, but so too is scepticism about AI returns. The hyperscalers continue to deliver 30%+ FCF margins and even higher returns on capital, and, as demonstrated in 2024, the opportunity cost of not investing in them is high. Price gains have been supported by earnings and cash flow growth, while higher-than-expected capex spending has spurred a range of beneficiaries—software, semiconductor, power, and electrical companies, to name a few.

Contributors: Netflix, Inc. outperformed due to continued subscriber growth and popular new content releases. The company's ability to consistently deliver engaging content helped it maintain its leading position in the streaming market, and we anticipate management will continue to deliver gains in 2025. Broadcom Inc. outperformed the market significantly after posting strong results in the last quarter. There was a large increase in demand for its AI solutions. Revenue was up 51% year-over-year, with a 220% rise in AI revenue. Interactive Brokers Group Inc. shares surged due to strong quarterly earnings announced in October and increased trading volumes post the US election. The company's robust platform and competitive pricing continue to attract more clients amid market volatility, boosting investor confidence. The chance of rising interest rates helps future earned income, and the Trump election success suggests that financial regulation may be relaxed, which should drive further gains for the company.

Detractors: Elevance Health, Inc. fell sharply after belatedly succumbing to margin pressure noted by Medicaid peers earlier in the year. This Medicaid redetermination process has had a much more profound impact on patient acuity than previous cycles, and Elevance had not priced their health plans on that basis. This has led to significant, temporary margin pressure in this book of business. Both Tesla, Inc. and Apple Inc. performed well in December, and given the zero weighting in both of these MAG7 stocks, they were among the largest detractors for the month. Uber Technologies, Inc. fell during the month. Negative sentiment on the timing of Tesla's entry into the AV rideshare industry continues to weigh on the stock, particularly post the Trump election win. Investors are still trying to understand the potential role Uber will play in the AV industry if AV regulation is more favourable and the technology is rolled out faster than anticipated. The decision by Waymo to enter the Miami market but not use the Uber app was also taken as a negative.
